The Body of a Murdered Officer Found

CHICAGO July 20—An Inter Ocean's Washington special says the treasury department has received information that the body of the deputy collector of internal revenue who accompanied Revenue Agent Beach on a raid against the whiskey men of Lawrence Alabama a few weeks ago and who was captured by a gang of illicit distillers has been found in Limon river Three of the murderers have been arrested and confined in Huntsville jail

Fire at Cincinnati—Perils of Firemen

CINCINNATI July 20—At 1 this morning the building occupied by Binck & Co's printing office, known as Donaldson's typographical was destroyed by fire. Loss about $75,000 At 3 o'clock the walls of the building which had not fallen from the effects of the fire were thrown down by an explosion of gas, and some seven firemen with Chief Engineer Megrue were buried under the debris Megrue was in the second story when the explosion occurred The alarm was given and the fire department was soon on hand searching for the unfortunates. At 4 A M Chief Megrue's body was found calling for help The fire blazed up at this time stronger than ever and the walls were soon brought into play and new danger created Megrue was taken from the ruins in a dying condition and in a badly bruised condition His injuries are not thought to be fatal however Of the firemen James McCormack was the first to be taken from the debris. He was badly bruised and injured. It is feared his injuries will result in death Daniels and Pullen were next rescued badly injured Henry Schlidmyer fell from a ladder but escaped with slight injuries Swain is thought to be fatally injured

OUR NATIONAL MILITARY SCHOOL

GENERAL VON MOLTKE'S OPINION OF WEST POINT AND WEST POINTERS

The great military scientist Von Moltke has termed the German armies like the samen for war than any of the famous military leaders of the past has been equal of late as to the alleged opinions of the Northern and Southern armies in the late struggle. We have been furnished with a translation of what he did say and it can be relied upon nearly to the opinion of the people of this country who watched the progress of the witnessed the results of the civil war gentleman asked the opinion of a German statesman recently upon the causes of Southern defeat and the officer replied that it was unprecedented in the history of the world that Napoleons struggling for their freedom were conquered and subjugated but was not to be ordered at when they committed their sixty thousands of a few graduates of

A LITTLE HIGH SCHOOL

He concluded that it was mere force of numbers and in spite of similar limitation in the Southern army, that caused it to succeed Von Moltke expressed his contempt in rather emphatic opinion of West Pointers and General Sherman had better go for him He

"I am asked why neither side in the late civil war in America produced a very distinguished general. Even their respective governments hardly claim any leader of transcendent genius If so long a war and where so many men fought, does it not imply a lack of military talent in the Americans? I answer, No! The true reason was because they could not hope to attain the supreme command of their armies unless he had been a graduate at their Military Academy called West Point, on the Hudson river in the State of New York The number of these students serving as they might be, was and is exactly limited

The Southerners adopted the same per nicious system of exclusiveness as many of those West Point officers had joined their side, and their president had also been at the head of it. It was perhaps that the South did not seek for talent among the mass of the people. It is said I know not how truly, that the genius of civil war, Ericsson, by the invention of a monitor came saved the Northern navy from destruction.

"It is evident that the chance of obtaining distinguished general increases as the field of selection widens and diminishes as it con tracts. In every army every soldier may aspire to the supreme command, but in the American service the line of demarcation was drawn as definite as between the former slaves and masters. In reading the records of the American civil war, it really appears as if the of the mighty heart of the nation had never looked. The aristocratic system of the Americans still follow was former the practice in all European armies In the session of 1793 Carnot the French Minister of war, first abandoned it, and we have seen that."

For the sake of example and not binding to us in any exactness of figures except that one army is very small and its opposite very large let us suppose a very large let us suppose the number of West Point officers to be 400 and the number of Prussian soldiers to be 1,000,000 Evidently as we have a fund a hundred times larger to draw upon to render chances of obtaining a great general equal to an American must possess a thousandfold talent of a Prussian which is absurd So the American military system of the

SWORD TO BE RESTORED

An ex-confederate officer has written a letter to R. B. Hoover, of Marietta, Ohio secretary of the Soldiers' Reunion, in which he says:

"I was in command of a Texas regiment of infantry, on the 3d day of October, at a place called Triton Station, Ga., received from a gallant Union officer there a sword (name is not remembered) which I gratefully accepted. He informed me that it belonged to the sword, told me that it was the first in the block-house fort and gave it up to me, and I have carried it ever since. I have asked the many rank, look off his sword and belt, and am desirous that the gallant officer who surrendered it to me should receive it back unstarnished The man will remember several days of the surrender, of his selling an hundred as he was going south and I was going north. He declared he would not take all the confederate money in the South for his overcoat, and so I scraped around and gave him the greenbacks This officer was from Maine or Missouri, I think, but I forget his name. If you can in any way ascertain who he is, or who are his relatives and will (without unpleasantness on my part) write to him on the occasion of the reunion please do so through the hands of Gene. D. M. Gray, who was witness to what I have said to him, or from, the sword with a well written tribute to the officers personal gallantry as I can write."

Now that they have been released from the heavy burden of the prohibitory liquor law the Republicans of Massachusetts are hopeful of carrying the State this year they say "back the power which the Democrats so recklessly took from them The Boston Herald carefully saves the Republicans have an opportunity to make a strong and strong departure on all local questions with them upon a broad liberal, practical platform and with a new ticket composed of the best men who will consent to serve they can restore the old Republican virtues and they ought to do it."

Politics are said to be very dull in Massachusetts this year The Springfield Republican thus explains the indifference of the voters

It is morally certain that Mr Gaston will be renominated The odds are that Mr Alexander H Rice will be put up against him What earthly reason is there why any rational man of adult age should agitate himself in this hot weather, over such a choice as that Both the men are gentlemen both are estimators of Boston both are intelligently conservative by temperament and habit, both have a proper sense of the dignity of the gubernatorial office and it is more likely than no that both will be found voting for the same presidential candidate next year If there is any issue in national or state politics on which these two gentlemen are known to take opposite sides we shall be glad to have it pointed out

The inflationists of Ohio are watching for Gov Hendricks to appear before them on the stump but as yet he has made no sign Meantime the last part of this paragraph from the Fort Wayne Sentinel indicates that he is not in love with the delusion of soft money From all indications Gov Hendricks is at least the favorite choice for President by the Democratic party Every newspaper of whatever political faith places Mr Hendricks at the head of the list when casting a horoscope of the campaign Mr Hendricks is a representative Western man he is universally popular because his public record is without a stain and his sole views on the currency—for he is a hard money man—will be in the interest of strength to the ticket Gov Hendricks has sat very quietly on the financial fence for a long time but the edge is growing very sharp now

COMING BACK

We are permitted to publish the following letter written by Mr William Watson the well known farmer of Reedville who left here last spring to take up his residence in California

AMERICAN EXCHANGE HOTEL
SAN FRANCISCO 14th July 1875

WM REID ESQ—DEAR SIR You will be surprised to hear that I am to return to old Oregon by the Ajax steamer on Saturday the 17th inst I am already disgusted with every body and everything in this State I would not give a prefer happy home of 150 acres in Oregon for 1,000 acres in California As for Eastern Oregon I stand by her Primer than ever There is no such grazing in this country Scabby sheep and starvation ought to be California's motto I think I have succeeded in inducing a number of stock men to come to Oregon before the fall and I would persuade those in Oregon to be contented when they are even although it does run a good deal to winter they may prefer and time worse I am bringing up some stock of various sorts for the good of Oregon but by next week's steamer I will have 500 to 600 of the merino sheep from the flock of Sereno Peck as good as can be found in my country and will be of lasting benefit to your State I have seen no place to compare to Lewis & Reed's stock in California

I am to go right to sheep in Eastern Oregon and stick to them the rest of my days when I return Faithfully WM WATSON

JEFF DAVIS AND THE LAST DITCH—A correspondence of the Watertown and Jefferson draws a very melancholy picture of Jef Davis present life and the ill fortune that is dogged him ever since his downfall began He came out of the great struggle says the writer with money enough to enable him to live comfortably for his remaining days but an evil genius seems to have pursued him every investment was a failure. He bought a cotton plantation and was made president of a life insurance company it endured his administration for a year or two and then gave up the ghost He bought stocks but always to sell again at less than cost And now he is or very soon will be dependent upon the charity of the people many of whom have an aversion for him He would rather work than lay him self under obligations even to his best friends, but he is over seventy years old and nobody cares to give employment to a man whom bad luck persistently follows Indeed he has but few friends—none among the loyal people—and the friends of the lost cause charge all their failures to his mismanagement so he lives with his wife and quite a numerous family in a very quiet way avoiding publicity He declined to deliver the Decoration Day address at Memphis saying that he was directly interested and that he might say something that he would afterward be sorry for His punishment is indeed severer than if he had been a martyr to the lost cause on the scaffold

The Republican press of this State says the New York Tribune professes to believe that its party has gained a great deal of strength since last fall and that it is now able to carry the State for its old ticket The Portland Times says "The unity of the Democratic assembly last winter and the union of Gov Lidden since the adjournment of the legislature have dashed hundreds and thousands of voters who last fall helped to swell the Democratic majority to such unprecedented proportions The cry then was that with a change of Administration better times would come and large numbers who ought to have known better were deluded by its specious and flattering promises and reluctantly voted against Dix and full of Tilden They are now discovered their mistake The times are no better in fact they are worse and it is evident that Tilden cannot and will not do anything to bring back the return of prosperity In this respect the men whose views was anything for a change are not likely to be deceived again."

Politics are said to be very dull in Massachusetts this year The Springfield Republican thus explains the indifference of the voters

It is morally certain that Mr Gaston will be renominated The odds are that Mr Alexander H Rice will be put up against him What earthly reason is there why any rational man of adult age should agitate himself in this hot weather, over such a choice as that Both the men are gentlemen both are estimators of Boston both are intelligently conservative by temperament and habit, both have a proper sense of the dignity of the gubernatorial office and it is more likely than no that both will be found voting for the same presidential candidate next year If there is any issue in national or state politics on which these two gentlemen are known to take opposite sides we shall be glad to have it pointed out

THE COMMERCIAL FAILURES IN ENGLAND

The city article of the London Times in June 26th contains the following With reference to recent events it may be remarked that the abuse of the credit system fostered and stimulated by the growing competition which may be termed the handmaid of prosperity is the curse with all of the great commercial disturbances of this century is mainly traceable The modus operandi has been in all cases the same allowing for small modification which are incidental to the changing circumstances of the times Competition in trade is useful and desirable but is extremely injurious when as in the case of the credit system it is abused and that by a powerful class of institutions which are capable of assessing in the spread of unsoundness to a degree probably not experienced before the Limited liability act came into force Competition—in the sense of encouraging weak operators to do business in the field not markets of the world by buying of them whatever price they like to draw—is a matter in principle than the system of stock brokers affording facilities to enable their clients to gamble on the stock exchange Indeed it is far worse and more dangerous ultimately in commerce as there are no fortnightly settlements to test the means of the merchant who ships tea from China or Japan or pepper from Singapore Many persons will be perhaps surprised to learn that when such bills are drawn instead of the shipping documents remaining attached to the draft in the process of negotiation the area of which has become so much extended by modern competition they very often get into the hands of one set of persons and the bill remains in the hand of another—the bill of course under such circumstances being comparatively worthless It is the drawer of such a bill be worth as is very often the case little or nothing and there are millions of such bills for which money has been paid for the produce shipped Is it possible that the foreign trade of a country can become otherwise than unsound in course of time under such a system? If it were possible the way to make a profit upon everything which a merchant bought and supplied to a foreign market there would be little danger of unsettled periods of the holders of such bills suffering but we know it is in the nature of all to fetch and bring and discount houses can go on year after year taking the same paper and drawing trade in which one man has been for years losing one We think that the losses in exports which have already culminated in so much disaster are how ever only one side of the picture In part the merchants have also found for years past that their Indian and China business has not paid and has to be the cause to a large extent to an unsound system of doing the business Since the completion of the Suez canal there has been no return cargo and the six months absence from the London market should any longer prevail It was scarcely necessary to draw bills again to produce shipping at such a long date as six months even when it was carried by steamer round the cape Now the voyage from China through the canal occupies between five and six weeks and from India a month what therefore can be the object any more of a six months bill None appears to exist except that the drawer is often in want of straw and is glad to have a large sum of money at his disposal for a long period with which he can multiply operations and be comparatively indifferent to losses so long as he can sell his bills to a joint stock bank which takes the risk involved for the sake of a good commission It is quite evident however that when trade in particular articles of produce is bad for years together if the commissions must be very large to make it worth while to keep those engaged in it on their legs and we hope that the unsoundness has thus worked its way into the import trade with the East it may be eradicated with the minimum of injury to those only indirectly concerned

EASTERN WOOL MARKET

The New York Tribune of the 16th inst has the following in reference to the wool market in that city What is said of California wool is of course meant to apply to the Oregon product as it is all credited to California which goes from this coast The Tribune says

There has been a fair business done in wool during the past month the transactions being principally confined to Ohio and Michigan some of the lots of which have been sold for the producers at 40 to 45 for the latter wools but unless they succeed in getting unusual deduction for all ill conditioned and fine cut these prices leave no margin for profit when the wools reach the seaboard markets With the small percentage of fleece wools now being used there is probably enough of last season's clip to supply the mills for several weeks and unless these new wools settle to a point which to manufacturers seems more reasonable they are likely to be neglected during the summer months It is the general opinion among the trade at the present writing that there will be room for a rise to set in any advance during the next few months and while there should be some decided improvement in the woolen goods trade so stimulating to activity manufacturers who for so long a past have been slow to make any prominent move in the market is not unlikely we shall see some falling off from present quotations

The Hartford Times says All the history and precepts of the Democracy sustain a sound currency we do not see they can or do not adopt and require The Ohio Democrats have put into their platform a weak and rotten plank against all the votes and utterance even of Gov Allen him self on the currency question Their course on this respect which other papers and Ohio Democrats notice as to fall below the situation of convention There never was a time when the Democrats could afford to repudiate their own principles It is of all has such a time come now

The Boise City Statesman says In the new counties of Bear Lake last year there were Oneida county 123 foreigners have become naturalized in Judge Hunter's court Bear Lake county 87 in the fall list of Pierre precinct have been found that these newly naturalized subjects voted at the last election At examination of the October Mormon precinct poll lists will probably show that more than all of the legal voted and many others voted who have to yet been naturalized As Mr Penn got all the votes of these Mormon precincts his vote will be likely to receive a pruning of more than 100

The Placerville Democrat says Oakland can boast of the two biggest and fattest and homeliest and best humored land lords of any little burg in the State

THE NEXT PRESIDENT

The New York Herald of July 8th thus speculates on the probabilities respecting the next presidential election

According to present appearance the Republican nomination lies between Washburne and Bristow Washburne has strong points He has not been mixed up with our recent controversies and has incurred no political enmities His conduct as minister to France in a trying period deserves and receives unqualified praise Nobody has ever questioned Grant's staunch fidelity to his friends and he has no friend in the world to whom he is so much indebted for distinguished services as Mr Washburne There is no Republican candidate in whose favor the Federal patronage would be exerted with such hearty alacrity and vigor Bristow would doubtless receive the president's support if he should be the nominee but he is too new a man to be strongly pressed for the nomination He has no personal following outside of Kentucky which is a Democratic State and it is not customary for political parties to nominate a presidential candidate who cannot possibly carry his own State in the election According to present appearances Washburne's chances are altogether the best for the Republican nomination

On the Democratic side Tilden seems to lead but his prospects are subject to many contingencies If the Democratic inflationists should carry Ohio this year his chances will be worthless because in that event the inflationists will be strong enough either to control the convention or to compel a compromise and Tilden took such bold hard money ground in his annual message that he can neither be an inflation candidate nor a compromise candidate But if the Ohio Democrats should be badly beaten the Tilden Presidential stock will be at a premium provided he does not get hands with a Democratic legislature next winter It is essential to his success that the New York delegation support him and if he has made terms with the next legislature these changes would be worth nothing even if the antimonists lose Ohio next fall But all prospects of these contingencies Mr Tilden's chances seem very good nomination especially when we consider the weakness of his competitors Thurman is as good as dead since the Ohio Democracy repudiated his financial heresies Hendricks is in the same predicament since the inflation platform of the Indiana Democrats But your man is as sure an object of a settled hostility with the Ohio Democracy for defeating Tandleton in 1868 Bayard is perhaps the most popular candidate the Democrats could nominate but he is a hard money man as Tilden and on a hard money platform Hancock's chances are the best With Washburne leading the ticket on one side and Tilden on the other it could be a very pretty fight

A ROMANCE OF THE SEAS

THE CREW OF A CITY LOST THE FLORIDA DISCOVERED SEVEN LIVING ON AN UNKNOWN ISLAND FOR TWENTY FIVE YEARS

[New Orleans Picayune.]

About a month ago a friend of Mr Harmon Jones received an English paper the account of some British vessel having been driven out of her course in a storm and sighted an unknown island Much to the surprise of the crew the island turned out to be inhabited and still more astonishing by men who spoke the English language The rest of the story as given in the paper referred to is that the castaways told the ship's company were the Florida party which had sailed from New Orleans in 1849 bound for California that they had been wrecked on the island and had dwelt there ever since it being then more than 25 years that they had not seen a human face or a sign of the world from which they were so utterly eliminated The paper gave the names of several all of whom are known to have been of the Florida's crew and all many other ways according to the version of Mrs Jones found the identity of the party was established as none but the crew of the Florida would have established in her hearts that if the British vessel offered to take the men on board but they declined say they had been just for a quarter of a century that they knew not in what situation they would find their families they had left and that they preferred staying and ending their days there rather than venture back to such a doubtful and uncertain future This paper was four months old when Mrs Jones found any one month ago and the events narrated were described as having occurred four months previous to the issue of the paper Nine months then since the island was discovered by the British vessel and at that time all or nearly all of the Florida party appear to have been alive It need not be said that this news has aroused the deepest interest To the community at large it calls to mind the circumstances of the Florida a ship from New Orleans with a piratical adventurous company To the families of the still fated men it comes like a message from the dead and is as though it were an announcement of a resurrection With the public at large the relatives have been having to a state of constant excitement, and many of these especially the sons of Harmon Jones John A. Sidney and Capt Benjamin C. the skipper of the Florida have devoted themselves to the task of following the clue given by the friend who saw the English paper Various enquiries are now on foot and the British consul has been interested himself in the affair so far as to agree to forward to the war office in London a statement of the circumstances so that the name of the vessel which touched at the castaways home can be ascertained, and the bearings of the island taken from her log

THE BETTER ANGELS OF OUR NATURE

[From the Lynchburg Virginian June 29

Some of the words of Abraham Lincoln spoken in his inaugural address seem now about to be fulfilled At all events they will be accepted in a very different spirit at this time from that feeling of derision and contempt with which many of the people of the South received everything that fell from the lips of the man who was regarded then as the enemy of their section We have often wondered how that uncouth looking man the coarse joker who spent some of the years of his early life among the rude boatmen of the West and nearly all of them on the frontier could write the beautifully poetic idea contained in the following extract and the still more striking and eloquent passage found in his address at the dedication of Gettysburg cemetery—a passage which for beauty of diction we venture to say is not surpassed by anything in the English language Let us the words of the inaugural Mr Lincoln said

We are not enemies but friends We must not be enemies—though passion may have strained it must not break our bonds of affection The mystic chords of memory stretching from every battle field and patriot grave to every living heart and hearth stone all over this broad land will yet swell the chorus of the Union when again touched as surely they will be by the better angels of our nature

We are beginning to learn now the Greeks thinking for the south ranges of arms are not to be seen, the mystic chords of memory in war that is producing vibration all over the country and it is not must be irredeemably wicked that would seek to rend it That union of the east and west Yankee and Southerner of free and slave blood and color which has made us the most powerful nation of the earth Having a vast country with all the resources of wealth and power and the means of defence within itself it is the British vessel offered to take the men on board but they declined say they had been just for a quarter of a century that they knew not in what situation they would find their families they had left and that they preferred staying and ending their days there rather than venture back to such a doubtful and uncertain future This paper was four months old when Mrs Jones found any one month ago and the events narrated were described as having occurred four months previous to the issue of the paper Nine months then since the island was discovered by the British vessel and at that time all or nearly all of the Florida party appear to have been alive It need not be said that this news has aroused the deepest interest To the community at large it calls to mind the circumstances of the Florida a ship from New Orleans with a piratical adventurous company To the families of the still fated men it comes like a message from the dead and is as though it were an announcement of a resurrection With the public at large the relatives have been having to a state of constant excitement, and many of these especially the sons of Harmon Jones John A. Sidney and Capt Benjamin C. the skipper of the Florida have devoted themselves to the task of following the clue given by the friend who saw the English paper Various enquiries are now on foot and the British consul has been interested himself in the affair so far as to agree to forward to the war office in London a statement of the circumstances so that the name of the vessel which touched at the castaways home can be ascertained, and the bearings of the island taken from her log

GEN SHERMAN'S LOYALTY

THE STATEMENT OF A SOUTHERN CONGRESSMAN

The Hon W H Levy Congressman from the fourth Louisiana district has published the following statement in the Shreveport Times

NATCHITOCHES La June 22 1875—Gentlemen In your issue of Sunday June 20th appears the following article

Col Wm Levy Congressman elect is said to have recently made the following statement to a correspondent of the Cincinnati Inquirer

Gen Sherman voluntarily unequivocally, and unconditionally pledged himself in the most binding manner not to fight on either side during the war The day before the occasion I refer to Col Sherman, in company with myself and Gen Bragg, while taking a drink at the St Charles bar made the same pledge in unmistakable terms His strongest desire in parting was to leave assurance that he had no enmity and would not participate in the fight It was an opinion among many at Sherman's policy was to retire until the thing was over then return and resume his old place in the military school as he could have done as he was regarded as a very valuable man in that position

I deem it my duty to correct this statement, inasmuch as it is a misunderstanding misapprehension of the facts of the case and I am unwilling that my name should be connected with aught that does injustice to another I have frequently in private intercourse spoken of my relations with Gen Sherman while he had charge of the Louisiana State seminary of learning and resided in Rapides parish but must have been greatly misunderstood if from any remarks of mine it has been deduced that Gen Sherman ever voluntarily, unequivocally and unconditionally pledged himself in the most binding manner not to fight on either side during the war

I saw a good deal of Gen Sherman just before the war, had frequent conversations with him and was greatly impressed by his earnestness and unanimity of feeling in the discussion of the probable results of the secession movement

I was an ardent advocate of secession both on principle and policy He was ardently and I believe sincerely opposed to it on the same grounds I will remember a solemn and impressive expression of his opinion just after the adoption of the ordinance of secession by the Louisiana convention to the effect that peaceful secession was impossible and a terrible internecine war was the sure result of the main side of which he thought was not appreciated by us of the South, but which, from his knowledge of Northern sentiment he professed to foresee He expressed himself most gratified for the kindness and hospitality which had been extended to him by the officials and private citizens of our State, and stated on more than one occasion that in view of the terrible struggle which he believed was imminent and inevitable he wished to retire to some quiet place where he knew he might not be called upon to participate in it, or even witness its horrors I certainly construed Gen Sherman's remarks as indicative of a desire to abstain from active participation in the war but not as pledging himself not to take part in it It is due to him to state that I saw him last (before the war) but a short time after the passage of the secession ordinance of Louisiana, and these conversations occurred to my memory serves me aright at least a month or two before the actual commencement of actual hostilities What causes may have operated to change his views as understood by me, I have no means of knowing Since the surrender I have seen General Sherman but once and then our interview was casual and our conversation cursory My ante bellum relations with him have not been renewed WILLIAM M LEVY

ADVICE TO THE COLORED PEOPLE

Fred Douglass the great colored orator delivered an oration at Hillsdale D C on the fourth of July from which we make these extracts

We did not make or control the issues of our own destiny We are the creatures of a conflict of social elements which we did but little to create The white people of this country quarreled and came to blows and it was our lot to be on the side of the victorious party Now when this mighty quarrel has ceased when all the sperities and resentments have gone as they are sure to go when all the clouds that a few years ago lowered about our National horizon shall be in the deep bosom of the ocean buried, when this great white race is renewed its vows of patriotism and flowed back into its accustomed channels the question for us is in what position will this tremendous reconciliation leave the colored people

The signs of the times are not all in our favor There are even in the Republican party indications of a disposition to get rid of us Men are seeking new allies and smiling on faces upon which they never looked before Even the late Ambassador candidates for the Presidency are already casting about to see if they cannot be elected in some way without the aid of the black vote Well they have the right to do all this but the thing looks bad, and we at least are called upon to look the matter in the face. Our shelter in the storms of the past has been Ulysses S Grant The question is as to who will shield us in the future Well indeed will it be for us if one as true, just and able shall come after him

One of the most unpleasant features of the situation for us is in ourselves We are a divided people and have no men among us I fear whose counsel will be heeded in the right direction It has been our misfortune to be educated by 200 years of slavery to respect white men and despise ourselves Now just this is the thing we are to outgrow We have got to find out that a people to be respected and powerful must have men among themselves and of themselves whom they must trust and respect White men have their great men and are respected in the same by being because they have them Now I believe that we, the colored people, have men of our own color in whom we may well believe and woe to us woe to any people who have no great men among their own people and of their own people Another bad feature of our situation is the fact that we have no grand organ which is particularly and distinctively our own We are disparaged villified slandered as a people but no people we are dumb have no press to answer and expose the injustice The press of this city is marvelously unanimous toward us but we ought to have a press of our own for we have a cause of our own Never until we have and sustain such a press will the reproach of our people be wiped out Oh for a man I say again who will boldly climb high enough to hang our banner on the outer wall so that it may be seen and read of all men that the colored race is capable of living, speaking them a life of absolute dependence and can think and speak for self The burden of our demand upon the Union an people shall simply be justice and fair play We utterly repudiate all invidious distinctions which run in our favor against us and ask only for a fair field and no favor

We nominate Major General Geo Crook for President of the United States He has greatly records as a man and soldier first rate administrative ability and is sure to unite the elements of strength.—Hampton Journal

Well that's a country We nominate General Hooker This makes a very nice arrangement between us and the Journal for we ought to be able to carry the next election by Hooker Crook.—Buffalo Express

There lives a man in Texas so old that the Indians call him Methuselah. He was about to take the oath of office when he noticed a group of men near him. "Gentlemen," he said I want a chew." As they turned and looked at him he continued "My pouch is in my hip pocket and I mention the fact lest you should think I was about to draw my revolver" Then he helped himself without dodging a shower of bullets as might have been once necessary He does not explained I want in Congress

THE HIPPLESPOON WITHERSPOUT.

"It is a tale told by an idiot,
Full of sound and fury, signifying nothing."

Disraeli, in his Curiosities of English Literature, has rescued from oblivion many interesting scraps of history and letters which, but for his researches, would

"Sleep the sleep that knows not breaking."

In humble imitation of his laudable example, we pen this article, in the hope of doing a similar service for a curiosity of American Literature, and, at the same time furnishing a moment's amusement to such of our readers as are of a literary turn. The Hipplespoon Witherspout, which first burst upon the world at the Witherspoon Institute, is the American curiosity to which we refer. It is an "Address" delivered by John Hipple, Oregon's noted, if not distinguished, Senator, at the Witherspoon Institute, on the 17th day of October, 1874, by request of the withered spooneys, i. e. "the President and faculty," "on the occasion of the reunion of the present and past" spooneys of that institution. Just how this remarkable performance—for such it certainly is, as will more fully appear hereafter—was received by the spooneys, old and young, for whose edification it was devised, does not affirmatively appear. It is to be recorded, to their praise, however, that the pamphlet, a copy of which was sown broadcast over this State by the author, contains no line or syllable indicating that they had anything to do with having it printed. The credit of that belongs to the author himself.

Inasmuch as we are generally supposed not to have the highest appreciation of the abilities and culture of this Senatorial anomaly, we propose to be more exact in our citations than we might otherwise be, in order that our literary readers may see for themselves what allowances they ought to make for our prejudices. In the opening paragraph we are regaled with a bland and seductive allusion to "emotions" which, being "stimulated into active exercise, * * * speak" "through eyes" a language "impressive in its silence." This mode of speaking through eyes appears not to have been at all satisfactory to the orator, if it was to the assembled spooneys, for he proceeds at once to sigh vigorously for a "tongue clothed with rare powers," etc. Nice clothing for a tongue, and a splendid place to put rare powers. Next we have a reference to some "gifted lines of the poet" (it is the lines not the poet that is gifted), which serve to introduce the following remarks: "Such, doubtless, are the sentiments of every one for whom I speak. And have we not cause to rejoice? Standing as we do to-night, in this, to us, almost hallowed presence! children, as it were, of one family, gathered in from our wanderings, kneeling around the old heartstone," &c., &c. That is just less absurd than Mark Twain's declaration, when, accepting the editorship of the agricultural department of the Galaxy, he said "in this virgin soil I will insert a reaping hook which shall blossom like the rose."

And now we have some "sweet reminiscences" which are "buried" by the "rough conflicts of time;" then the "rough conflicts of time," are changed in "a sea of liquid fire," which, to say the least, is a rather flaming metaphor.

We have not space to array before our readers all the absurdities that bristle from one end of the "Address" to the other, but will make a passing allusion to a few more examples.

We have a statement that twenty years have set their seal on the "Institute," and that some of the pages of the history of this vast period "are draped with the darkness of the grave and grooved with the sanguinary lines of war. Grooved edges draped in darkness, is about as dismal rhetoric as we remember to have met. Then, in three or four passages there is that "whirlwind of five" that never yet failed to rise when our John Hiram had a speech to make. The "spirit of patriotism" is caused to rest down on the people, and while there, it is "set on fire" and continues to "burn with a pure and steady light" through some rambling, turgid and meaningless sentences. The "infinite spaces in human improvement," is new if not true. How "human improvement" gets into spaces, and infinite spaces at that, is something which we apprehend, would puzzle even the wise heads of the Witherspoon faculty to explain. By the way, how many infinite spaces are there, and what are their respective boundaries? There is an old story of an individual who asked a friend to write a letter for him. The friend asked what he desired to have him say. "Oh, anything that sounds kind of high; Notwithstanding' is a good word," was the reply. So to the ear of John Hiram "stupendous" sounds "kind of high" and we have "stupendious arches," "stupendous aggregate" on the same page. And here is what happened at the close of the rebellion:

"The flag was safe; and the great heart of patriotic Christendom pulsated quick and fast with a new joy. While the old Republic, terribly scourged for its wickedness but purged of its blackest sin, rising from its great affliction put on the garments of a purer life, and keeping step to the music of universal liberty and human progress, now moves triumphantly forward, the vanguard of nations, toward a higher and better civilization."

This personification is positively stunning. Who can fail to be intensely delighted as he beholds the "scourged" and "purged" "old Republic" getting safely through "rising," dressing and gayly waltzing off to the soul-inspiring strains of Yankee Doodle!

But the crowning glory of the performance is the tribute paid to the "enterprising genius of man," which, though of the neuter gender, appears to be a clever devil of all work. We give this passage at length, at the risk of being thought tedious:

"The enterprising genius of man, vitalized by mental training is daily working out new wonders in the scientific world, and adding new gems of rare value and unfading beauty to the already dazzling crown of the age in which we live. In natural philosophy it spans continents, and connects the capitals of fraternizing States with bands of iron; it springs stupendous arches across fearful chasms and foaming cataracts; it coils threefly wires around the world, under oceans and over continents, and the islands of the sea, and spreads its network of living speaking tongues over the whole area of the inhabitable globe; it imprisons the electric spirit of the magnetic universe in base metals which it covers from the searching monsters of the deep with congealed gum drawn from the sappy trees of the Orient; it speaks with tongues of fire in all languages, to all nations and all people; it moves in majesty and power along the watery causeways of the mighty deep with a thing of life, and uncoils from its freighted deck the serpentine monster to dwell forever among the coral and the amber in hidden caverns of infusorial life, there to feed on lightnings drawn from the exhaustless magazine of nature by the inventive genius and irresistible power of the mind of man; it flings the glance of its telescopic eye to the remotest star in the nebulous regions of incomprehensible space, and it picks the microscopic monster from the pearly drop of the crystal fountain."

What a pity this glorious creation, which leaped from the brain of Hipple like Minerva from that of Jupiter, should have come clothed only in the armor of prose! Be it our delightful task to burnish up that armor by poetic rubbing, and to wed this wonder of thought in its resplendent glory to immortal verse, in the Hiawathan stanza. Thus we glide:

Enterprising human genius,
Vitalized by mental training,
Wonders new is daily working
In the round world, scientific;
Adding gems of priceless value
And of beauty all unfading,
To the dazzling crown now resting
On the age in which we're living.
Here is Unit for It
In philosophy material,
Spanning continents, — o forth,
With connecting bands of iron
Springing 'cross the foaming torrent,
And across the fearful chasm.
Arches which we'll term Aqueous,
Under oceans, over islands,
Continents, and round creation,
Coiling threadly wires and spreading
Network, formed of living, speaking
Tongues, all over said creation.
Can rich things be?
It performs the part of jailor
In a prison of base metals,
For a spirit universal,
And ethereal, and magnetic,
Which from ocean's searching monsters,
With a gum all congealed,
Drawn from sappy trees of Orient,
It securely hides and covers.
Good for caoutchouc!
With its tongues all incandescent,
To all nations and all peoples,
It orates in many tongues.
With a thing of life it moveth,
In its majesty and power,
For along the watry causeways
Of the mighty rolling sea,
From its freighted deck the monster
Serpentine it next uncoileth
'Mid the coral and the amber,
In the caverns of infusoria.
There to dwell and feed forever,
On the lightnings drawn from nature's
Wondrous magazines exhaustless.
By the genius, inventive,
And the mental power resistless,
Owned by nature's noblest biped.
A glance remarkable it flingeth
From its peepers telescopic—
(But we find the thought too "nifty"
For our skill in rythmic crochet;
Hence we'll stop the mill with saying,
That the glance of which he's speaking
Does some astronomic ogling,
And the monster microscopic,
Picketh from the pearly globule
Of the sparkling crystal fountain.)

After this exhausting effort we are ill prepared to appreciate the next piece of toplofical bosh which is presented in the announcement of a "new calculus of thought," whatever that may be. Possibly this new calculus may be something that will enable one to calculate how much it costs to buy a seat in the United States Senate or transform Beggar Nixon into "Wrestling Joe."

"Von Bismarck," we are aware, has been doing some startling things in the last lustrum, but it was first published at Witherspoon that "from his seat in the German Parliament" he, like another Roman discobolus, "hurled the axiom of a fact" into the "ear of nations." In the name of common sense, what's "the axiom of a fact?" Can old Bis. inform us, or shall we have to rely on the Witherspooneys to explain this rhetorical gyration of their offspring?

Here we come upon some reflections on human life, which merit a passing notice:

Human life at most is but a span, a mere vapor, a passing breath, a floating shadow. Shakspeare, in one sense was right, and in another wrong, when in speaking of human life he said:

"It is a tale told by an idiot,
Full of sound and fury, signifying nothing."

But more beautiful still is the description given by James, in his epistle to the Twelve Tribes, wherein he says:

"For what is your life? It is even a vapor that appeareth for a little time, and then vanisheth away."

Truly St. James must feel immensely flattered by having it thus publicly declared, and by a United States Senator, too, that his description of human life is more beautiful than "a tale told by an idiot, full of sound and fury signifying nothing."

Some may think we have caricatured the intensely Hippleian production under discussion. We have not. Nobody could do it. No pen could convey an idea of the indescribable bathos that runs through every line, without transcribing it complete. The severest possible criticism of it, is itself. And then the intrinsic absurdities of it are aggravated by such talk of "God," "Death," Virtue, &c., &c., which, to those who have a real reverence for such subjects, and who know our Senator's practices as well as his preaching, is positively disgusting. Had Moliere lived in this age, known our Senator, and read this address, the name of Tartuffe would not at this day be the synonym for canting hypocrisy, but another name would be its substitute—a name which the action of no county court could displace.

A RING ORGAN CONFESSES.

One of the Ring organs admits the truth of our charge that they prefer the election of a Democrat to that of an Independent. What do Republicans generally think of that declaration? Is it not true, as the Independents have charged, that the leaders of the ring have no regard for the principles of the Republican party? They confess that it is, when they assert the party has principles which are directly opposed by the Democrats, and yet that sooner than see Independents elected, even though they be independent Republicans, they will assist in the election of Democrats. The confession adds nothing to the conviction which already existed in the minds of those who had given the matter some attention, but it makes the truth plain to all. The success of the Independents puts an end to all official jobbery and deprives the selfish politicians of the power to make use of the public patronage and the people's treasury to enrich themselves and perpetuate their official terms. That is what hurts them. That is the secret of their allying themselves with the opposite party. Treachery to the people of their own party is a small matter to them, so long as they can secure the offices.

The idea suggested by the OREGONIAN of sending our esteemed Mayor and suite to London, appears to meet very general approval. A prominent citizen, seeing how decidedly public sentiment inclined that way, went to canvassing for contributions to defray the expenses of the trip, and succeeded beyond his highest expectations. The only drawback was that every subscriber attached to his name a condition that his contribution should be used to pay for outward voyage alone. There is difficulty at that end of the line, but nobody appears disposed to give anything toward bringing the visitors back home.

We need not tell our readers that we have no special partiality for Mr. H. W. Scott, Collector of Customs at this port, in order to prevent our being misapprehended when we say we scarcely credit what the Evening Journal charges against him.

We learn from the Washington Chronicle that one day lately, the President was not present at the races which came off at Monument Park, near Long Branch, and that his absence "gave rise to some comment."

Most of our readers will, we doubt not, generously pardon us for devoting so much of our space this one morning to belle lettres, thus limiting ourselves somewhat in the matter of variety.

The announcement of ex-Senator Harlan's retirement from the Washington Chronicle has set Newspaper row to figuring on his chances for the Senate.

SUNDAY MORNING, JULY 21, 1875.

CITY.

Proceedings were instituted a few days ago, in Reilly's court, by a colored gentleman named Robert Small against another person of the same name, named Enoch Newsome. The suit was for the recovery of money claimed to be due the plaintiff in the action from the defendant. Yesterday the case came on for hearing. A jury being demanded, Constable Norton proceeded to summon six persons of color, who were to decide the case according to the law and evidence. The following are the names of the jurors: Hank Jones, Wm. Brown, P. A. Johnson, Andrew Dubois, A. E. Bowers, H. Lowen. Plaintiff and defendant were represented respectively by O. P. Mason and J. H. Woodward. After examining a number of witnesses, and the opposing counsel had argued the case, the jury was charged by the court and allowed to retire. Up to a late hour last evening the jury had failed to agree upon a verdict. It is probable that the jury will be discharged without rendering a verdict. This is, we believe, the first case in which "hair" has yet been tried in the State courts. The suit and jury have been parties to the suit and jury have been of color. To have made the picture complete, the court, constable and counsel should have been of the same hue.

THE WEST SHORE.—The initial number of the West Shore, an eight-page monthly published in Portland, has just been placed on our table.

The West Shore contains thirty-two columns of reading matter and advertisements, and, as a publication of several city directories, a descriptive of the State, tables of distances, railroad and steamboat lines of travel, is the publisher. The paper is clearly printed and presents a handsome and attractive appearance. The title-head of the paper is neatly executed---from the chisel of C. B. Talbot---and represents, in the distance, Mount Hood and its surrounding chain of mountains, on the right, in the foreground, a fine view of the cities of Portland and Portland, divided by the Willamette river, at their final junction with the lordly Columbia on the left. The present number is embellished with several cuts---one the first and the other the buildings in Portland, also a view of Astoria, and several others illustrative of the scenery of the State. Several of our ablest writers and contributors to the columns of the Oregonian are numbered among the readers of the West Shore.

DEATH OF MAJOR WALKER.—Mention was made several weeks ago of the finding of the remains of Major John Walker, who was one of the passengers on board the ill-fated steamer S. S. Wright at the time she was burned. By order of Adjutant-General H. Clay Wood, a casket for the reception of the remains was forwarded on board the steamer Ajax, with instructions that the same be brought down to this city. Our dispatches from the north yesterday morning state that the Ajax was anchored at Nanaimo, and that she would leave for Portland, having on board the remains of the late Major Walker. The steamer will probably arrive here to-morrow. It has not yet been determined whether the remains are to be buried here or sent East, as a necessary of war has not been consulted in reference to the disposition of the same. It is a strong probability that the casket containing the remains will be sent to Fryburg, Oregon, for permanent interment, as deceased was born and reared at that place, and many of his friends and relatives still reside there.

SERIOUS ACCIDENT.—From the evening coming we learn that a man named Wilson met with quite a painful accident in the city of Powell's valley yesterday afternoon. He was felling a tree, which gave way sooner than was expected, some of the limbs of which struck him about the face and neck, bruising and lacerating the flesh to a considerable extent, and knocking Wilson senseless. When found by his wife, who was not far from him when he failed to come to his dinner, the unfortunate man was still insensible, and remained so for an hour after he had been taken home. By the application of the usual restoratives, he was restored to consciousness, and our informant left him early this morning, he was confined to his bed, and suffering but little from his wounds.

NEXT TRIAL.—A typo in this city has been a good subject for weeks past in—well, we will say "Mary,"—not a young lady, dear reader, but a certain boarding-house arrangement in South Portland, which shall be nameless. He went to it quietly, kept his weather-eye open, and when it reached a fixed figure, which it did yesterday, presto, change! and our typo and head-no-more interest in "Mary," but has a richer man by something over $250, he having been advised of the sale by telegram. We congratulate him, and wish he could do it often. Good fortune seldom falls to the lot of the printer.

BEARS KILLED.—On Sunday last William Jones, of Eagle Creek, W. T., who has the reputation of being a hunter of the first water, killed two black bears a few miles below that place. One of the animals received quite a number of shots before it "passed in its checks," and gave considerable trouble to Mr. Jones, which, however, did not result in any injury to himself. John Hume, who accompanied William, lent valuable assistance in securing the bears. The carcases were brought to the City, and the meat cut up for family consumption and preservation by curing.

ST. VINCENT'S HOSPITAL.—The unfortunate Chinaman who lost a portion of the left hand Monday morning, while working on a planer at St. John, has been removed to St. Vincent's hospital, where he will be tenderly cared for by the patient, gentle sisters, and receive the needed medical treatment. Dr. Caldwell amputated the limb at the joint on Monday afternoon, and soon had him removed to the hospital. Considering the extreme warm weather and the serious character of the injuries sustained, the Chinaman is doing quite well.

ARRIVED SOUTH.—Last evening the line was up from the south, of Grave creek, and, owing to the lateness of the hour, it was not raised during the night. This unexpected event will fully account for the meager dispatches to be found on our first page. We learn that a heavy rain and wind storm has prevailed for several days in the southern portion of the State and Northern California. At present writing it is raining at Roseburg. The storm is travelling northward, and its welcome and needed presence may be expected here very soon.

"QUEEN CITY" AND "ORIENT."—The two new steamers which were built the present season at Portland, and by the O. S. N. Co., are now receiving the machinery, and will soon be ready for the trial trips. One of the boats has been named the Occident and the other Orient. The new boats are designed for the Upper Willamette trade, and are to be used whenever the new wheat crop is ready for shipment. They are light draught, have large freight carrying capacities, and will consequently render good service to the company the present season.

WEATHER REPORT.—From the records of the U. S. Signal Station of Observation, Portland, Oregon, July 20, 1875:

APPOINTED NAVAL CADET MIDSHIPMAN.—Nicholas Stuart Snyder, son of our townsman, Albert M. Snyder, Esq., has been appointed Naval Cadet Midshipman, U. S. Navy, by Hon. George M. Robeson, secretary of the navy. The appointee is to report to the superintendent of the naval academy, Annapolis, Md., on the 15th of September next.

BOAT BUILDING.—Several workmen are busily engaged in completing the repairs to the steamer Bonita. The new shaft has been placed in position, and the wheel is being put on as rapidly as possible. Early next week the Bonita will be ready for service again.

A GOOD BOOK.—Mr. Coon, of East Portland, is canvassing for a history of all religious denominations, which we should say, on a brief examination, would be a useful work to those who do not possess the more extended volumes on the same subject.

HOMEWARD BOUND.—Gen. Howard, accompanied by paymaster, Col. Bachelder, and aid-de-camp Lieut. Sladen, started several weeks ago for Fort Klamath. Col. Bachelder went out to pay off the troops at that post, and Gen. Howard to officially inspect the fort. Yesterday morning the party were expected to start for Portland. They may be expected to reach here the last of the present week.

AT OSTERVILLE.—The following persons were sojourning at this place on Monday: Mrs. Chas. Woodard and daughter, Gus. Heseke; L. C. Henrichsen, wife and child; E. Jurgenson, J. N. Cutter, and Jacob Kahn, Portland. G. W. Gray and daughter and W. T. Gray, Salem. John Ganter, Albany. Mrs. Chapman, Oregon City. Mrs. McMillen, East Portland.

DEMOCRATIC CONVENTION.—To-morrow the Democratic county convention will convene at the court house in this city, for the purpose of selecting delegates to attend the Democratic State convention, which will convene at Salem on the 29th inst.

IN SESSION.—The grand council of the Improved Order of Red Men, for Oregon, convened yesterday morning at the hall, corner of Washington and Front streets. The council will remain in session for several days.

BRIEF NOTES.

Line down---no dispatches.

Common council this evening.

No shipping news from Astoria.

Steamer Ajax arrived here last evening.

Democratic county convention to-morrow.

More new books have been added to the Portland Library.

"Nice, cool lodger bear" is what one of the signs up town says.

Only two forlorn drunks disposed of in the police court yesterday morning.

The city jail is now wholly tenantless---not a prisoner within its somber walls.

The "lurid lightning was flashing at intervals athwart the gloomy sky" this morning, as we go to press. Strong indications of rain.

Mr. Leslie, the advance agent for the Allegrianians, will go up the valley this afternoon. He will visit Salem and Albany and return to Portland on Saturday.

By special invitation the members composing the grand council, I. O. R. M., now in session in this city, paid a fraternal visit last evening to Multnomah Tribe, No. 3.

Mrs. Flora Muybridge who is the heroine of the Muybridge-Laryne homicide, is now lying sick in one of the hospitals at San Francisco, in destitute circumstances.

Officer Minto, of the Salem police force, arrived here on Monday afternoon, having in custody five persons, charged with selling liquor to Indians. The U. S. grand jury now have the case under advisement.

A special dispatch from the upper Columbia yesterday says: "Walla Walla---thermometer climbed to 104 here yesterday, and weather very sultry. Celio---hottest day of the season yesterday. Thermometer was 103 at 4 P. M.

W. S. Chapman who has been acting in the capacity of local reporter for the Evening Journal for some time, has joined a surveying party and will start for distant parts this morning. He will be absent from the city for more than two months.

POSTAL MATTERS.

Several publishers send their publications through the mails unfolded, which causes some delay in distribution.

The issuance of 7, 12 and 24 cent stamps has been discontinued by the department. The new rate of foreign postage brought about this change.

Page, son of Thomas Stephens, of this city, is learning the ropes in the postoffice, with a view of locating in that institution as a full-fledged P. O. clerk.

For want of sufficient postage large numbers of papers are thrown in the waste basket at the postoffice. The full rate of postage, one cent an ounce, must be paid, or the paper will not be forwarded.

The postoffice clerks and route agents are delighted with their printing press, and employ spare time in studying the art of printing. The cost of transportation on the machine was almost equal to the price paid for it.

Two cent stamps will be printed in vermillion hereafter to avoid errors, owing to a similarity between them and the ten cent stamp. Stamped envelopes, in new colors and different sizes, and the 5 cent (foreign) stamps are to arrive soon.

The issue of postal cards, new design, will be commenced by the department about August 1st. The adhesion of a one cent stamp to a postal card will be sufficient to pay the foreign postage on them. Two cent postal cards will not be issued by the department.

THE COURTS.

STATE CIRCUIT COURT---SHATTUCK, J.

E. P. Wright vs Seth Lewelling and Thos. Baird; motion for new trial argued and submitted.

James Moore vs T. A. Savier et al; demurrer to complaint argued and submitted, with leave to both parties to file briefs on or before August 1st.

M. Fisk vs Julia A. Fisk; decree of divorce granted.

State of Oregon ex rel vs Ben Holladay et al; demurrer to complaint overruled; defendants allowed ten days to file answer; cause set for trial August 9th.

W. H. Musgrove vs Stephen Haines; report of referee confirmed except as to costs.

THE COURTS.

U. S. DISTRICT COURT---DEADY, J.

TUESDAY, July 20, 1875.

In re tug Favorite; all exceptions set for hearing on Tuesday, the 27th inst.

John Newsom, grand juror, excused.

W. R. T. Co. vs O. S. N. Co.; order for briefs.

W. R. T. Co. vs O. S. N. Co.; same as last.

FREE LECTURES.—Dr. J. L. York, of San Jose, California, will give a course of liberal and free-thought lectures at Oro Fino Hall on Thursday, Friday, Saturday and Sunday of this week at 8 P. M. Subject, opening lecture: "Common Sense vs. Hammond." All cordially invited. Come "early" and bring your wife.

Retailers who have sold Elmwood collars say they can't keep store without them. This is a good recommendation.

Fine lot of Royal Anne cherries at Bremer & Son, grocers.

CHROMOS FOR ALL.—An extensive stock of chromos has been opened in the store adjoining the postoffice by Mr. E. W. Ryan. These chromos were selected personally during a recent visit in the east, and will be offered at low prices. Call and examine.

Genuine imported Vichy water and the delicious creme Polar soda water can only be had at Pfunder's German pharmacy, New Theatre block.

Why will you continue to pay big prices for Clothing while those well known dealers in that desirable article, BECK & WALDMAN, are offering such bargains. The dull times necessitates a great reduction and they propose to keep the public supplied at any sacrifice. Each steamer brings them new goods, and they sell from the entire stock at the reduced rates. Call while the opportunity to buy low is offered. Youths' clothing a specialty.

IN NEW QUARTERS.—That well-known Clothier, JOS. KOHN, is to be found in his large and elegant store, corner of First and Morrison streets. The new store has been fitted up in a manner calculated to enable Mr. Kohn to display his large and elegant stock of Clothing, Furnishing Goods, &c., to excellent advantage. The steamer to arrive will bring large invoices delayed with a view to save removal. Mr. Kohn's prices are low and he gives satisfaction invariably.

SPECIAL NOTICE.

Ladies who wish to have their own hair braided, made into switches, or worked up into any kind of ornamental work for use or preservation, will do well to call on or send to Mrs. LARSON, Morrison street, between Second and Third. She does all such work very neatly and upon reasonable terms. jeziditm

THE WOMAN'S FRIEND.

Every housekeeper should procure Pirrung's Combined Scrubbing Machine and Carpet Stretcher. It is indispensable to health, long life and cleanliness. It is durable, made of the very best material, is best appreciated after a most thorough trial, and only Machine in the world that takes up the dirty water without a cloth or sponge. Send for circular to the agents.

U. S. GRAND JURY---JUDGE DEADY'S CHARGE.

Yesterday morning, in the U. S. district court, the following persons were empaneled as jurors: R. R. Thompson (foreman), Lester Potter, J. S. Hibbs, Wisdom Millsap, Minor Spicer, William Thurman, Henry Hewett, Reuben Gantt, Willis Dunnigar, Jesse Macey, S. W. B. Jones, E. B. Kensington, Lewis Savage, James Abraham, John Exon, Alonzo Gates, D. F. Prettyman, J. A. Newell, Plympton Kelly.

After empaneling the jury, His Honor, Judge Deady, then charged the grand jury, calling their attention to the fact that they had taken an oath to diligently enquire into all crimes committed against the laws of the United States within the district of Oregon, and to keep their own counsel and that of their fellows secret. That the provision requiring the deliberations and votes of the grand jury to be kept secret, was coeval with the existence of the institution itself, and that without it, grand juries would soon lose their independence and usefulness. Speaking of the organization and general duties of the jury, the court proceeded to charge the jury in relation to the late steamboat disaster---the blowing up of the Senator. In this connection the court read to the jury the following from the Rev. Stat. of the United States. "Section 5344---every captain, engineer, pilot, or other person employed on any steamboat, or vessel, by whose misconduct, negligence or inattention to his duties on such vessel, the life of any person is destroyed; and every owner, inspector, or other public officer, through whose fraud, connivance, misconduct, or violation of law the life of any person is destroyed, shall be deemed guilty of manslaughter, and, upon conviction thereof before any circuit court of the United States, shall be sentenced to confinement at hard labor for a period of not more than ten years."

MILITARY NOTES.

The Spirit of the West has the following military notes:

Major Otis, First Cavalry, is to take command of this post very soon.

The paymaster will be here early next week and pay the full two months for which the troops mustered on the 30th ult.

The recruits that came up here a few days since are still learning their drill. They were detailed to further the ditch, for the first time.

Private Mason has been remitted two years of five years' imprisonment, on the recommendation of the post commander at Fort Canby, for good conduct.

Company H, First Cavalry, arrived at the Garrison from Harney on Monday. They occupy the quarters lately vacated by Company M same regiment.

Many of the infantry will have completed their enlistment during the present half year. Their final statements will make things lively at Walla Walla for some time.

Companies H and L, First Cavalry, are to proceed to the Willowa valley in the course of a few days. Whether the Indians are disaffected, or committing raids on the settlements, we are unable to state.

The ditch for the water pipes to convey water from Garrison creek, above Dr. Alden's to the post, is progressing first-rate, and before many days the garrison will be supplied by this means, instead of the water wagon.

The recruits that left this post for Fort Colville, had to lie over at Snake river, in consequence of the heat, and some of the mules escaped from the teamster. The mules were since found, and no doubt the men will reach their destination at an early date.

COLD LUNCHES.—The oyster season having closed, WALLER & SON, Oak street, between First and Second, will serve Rare Lunches to their patrons at all hours. The OXFORD SALAD DRESSING, their own preparation, is meeting with great favor. Try it.

LACES! LACES!

Having perfected arrangements with an acquaintance in London I am enabled to offer Laces at lower figures than they can be purchased elsewhere in the city. I have these goods in SHAWLS, HANDKERCHIEFS, SQUARES and TRIMMINGS, and by the yard. The ladies are invited to call. Satisfaction guaranteed.

A Double Danger Averted.

The inhabitant of a malarious region is threatened by a double danger. He is not only compelled to breathe miasma, but to swallow it, since it infects not only the atmosphere, but the water. The aerial poison threatens his system through the lungs and pores, the liquid through the stomach. Against this double peril there is but one protection, and that is to invigorate the entire body through the digestive and secretive organs. Ordinary tonics usually fail to accomplish this---Hostetter's Stomach Bitters never. In the tropics, where the diseases originated by malaria are of a far more malignant type than those originated by the same cause in the temperate zone, it enjoys immense and and constantly increasing sales, and there is no portion of this continent where it is not the reigning specific for miasmatic fevers and disorders of the stomach, liver and bowels, proceeding from malaria and other causes.

Have You a Cough, Cold, Pain in the Chest, or Bronchitis? In fact, have you the premonitory symptoms of the "insatiate archer," consumption? If so, know that relief is within your reach in the shape of Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry, which, in many cases where hope had fled, has snatched the victim from the yawning grave.

RAMMED AT SALEM.

The steamer Salem, under charge of Capt. Wade, left this city on the morning of the 20th, at 7 o'clock.

The religious excitement caused by the presence and Christian co-operation with the celebrated revivalist, Rev. T. F. Hammond, not only continues, but increases as his assistants warm up to the work. This morning at Reed's opera house yesterday, was literally, although not "largely" attended. Business men appear loth to leave their offices and desks, unpainting, no doubt, their presence at the evening meeting is all sufficient for the salvation of their own souls, and like many other citizens we know of, are perfectly willing to let others take care of themselves. Mr. Hammond is himself somewhat at fault for this lack of public interest, he taking occasion to give Salemites a raking over, at one time calling them backwoodsmen and not fully up to ways of the world as regards information to be gained by reading newspapers, etc. As Salemites pride themselves,---and justly too---on public intellectual and educational advantages, the onslaught was received with proper indignation, and was universally considered very much out of place. The incident, it seems, dampened public faith in him in a great degree, and it will need powerful and conclusive labors on his part to clear his garments of the stain. The natural handful of working Christians from Portland last evening, helped matters along amazingly. Among the number we noticed William Wadhame, E. J. Northrup, D. W. Wakefield, Mr. Chanlin, Rev. R. Bentley, W. T. Shannahan, and the notorious reformed gambler Zed Wilson. The news of their arrival spread like wild fire, and by 7:30 o'clock P. M., an immense crowd had congregated in Marion Square to listen to or participate in the exercises. Hammond was as usual here, there and everywhere. One moment on the platform leading the singing, next down in the audience stirring up the lukewarm, then on horseback galloping down street, drumming up converts. Chanlin meanwhile was on the street endeavoring, in his effective style, to entice outsiders in. Mr. Wadhams in the meantime was conducting the services from the stand, ably assisted by Rev. Bentley and others. The Portland delegation were up and in arms, and infused new interest in the exercises. The choir was a powerful one, and under the leadership of L. G. Adair, made the evening air resound with soul-stirring music. The entire audience felt the presence of the Portland workers, who won the hearts of every one by their zeal in the Master's cause. They are workers in every sense of the word, and could Salem Christians but be induced to follow their example, a great work might be done in our midst. It however takes considerable time and energy to wake up the people and endow them with a spirit of labor in the Master's vineyard. Mr. Wakefield made a stirring address in behalf of the cause, his experience being of a very interesting nature as related by himself. Mr. Wadhams' address was most earnest and awakened the deepest interest. Zed Wilson was introduced and spoke his little piece, attracting great attention. Mr. Shanahan and others followed, and the meeting continued until nearly 12 o'clock. Morning services are now being held in the Congregational church, and another open air meeting will be held in the square this evening, when more Portlanders are expected.

SUNRISE IN VENICE

Night seems troubled and scarce asleep
If embrowns are gathered in broken rest
Sail on old lion of dark Splut Mark,
And a star in the east starts up from the deep
While as my liberal eye grow in the West
Hist men are passing hurried
I see the yellow wide wings of a bark
Sail silently over the moral water
I see men move in the moonlight dark
Tall and silent as men are—
Great heavy men that are used to see
With liberal eyes dark and will open breast
Barefooted fishermen's skilful their hands
Brown as the wood and are a age free
Brave old water dogs with thin eyes
Firs to their labors and last to the roosts

Ships are moving I hear a horn
A silver trumpet it sounds so loud
Deep-voiced and musical, for a sea
Answers back and again it calls
Tis the sentinel boats that watch the town
All night as mounting her watery walls
And watching for pirate or smuggler. Down
Over the sea, and reaching away
And upon the east a soft light falls—
Silvery soft as the mist at morn
And I catch a breath like the breath of day

The east is blossoming. Heaven rose,
Veil as the heavens kissed me a kiss
Sweet as the presence of woman is
Rises and reaches and widens and grows
Right out of the sea as a blossoming tree
Richer and richer so higher and higher
Deeper and deeper it takes its hue
Brighter and brighter it reaches through
The space of heaven and the place of stars
Till all is as rich as a rose can be!
And my rose leaves fall into billows of fire
Then beams reach shipyard as arms from a sea
The lances and arrows are aimed at me.
Then lances and spangles and stars and bars
Are broken and shivered and strewn on the sea
And upland and about me tower and spire
Start from the billows like tongues of fire

VENICE 1874 —Joaquin Miller

AN AWKWARD PREDICAMENT

The Washington Capital tells the following amusing story

A humorous incident, the result of absent mindedness and wet weather, occurred last week, with a prominent Treasury gentleman as the principal performer. Business detained him at the office until after dark, and the rain coming on he was still further detained. He wore a new and elegant pair of pants of light material, and not wishing to rumple the goods in a June shower, decided to take them off leave them in the desk, and hook and pike his dreary way in his linen underclothing trusting to the night to keep them from observation. He started out umbrellaed and his drawers pulled down as closely to his instep as they could be induced to go. It seemed so natural, and no one appearing to notice it, that he forgot about the condition of things altogether—so entirely so that he had opportunity to remark a young lady acquaintance glide past a postoffice on her way to a memorial meeting of a Shakspeare club performance. He was only slightly acquainted, but counted on his umbrella and the rain to hurry over and offer his services as escort. These were readily accepted, and the couple got tolerably intimate through the slushy street, so much so that when they arrived at the girl's destination she invited him in. He ought not to have accepted it, but feeling that a little relaxation, such as is afforded by an amateur dramatics, would benefit his mental qualifications for the next Civil Service examination, overcame his scruples and he entered. Quite a number of ladies and gentlemen were present when he was ushered in, and, taking a prominent seat as Treasury clerks are wont to do, started with a facetious remark to a neighbor and to pull his pantaloons up to save them from creasing at the knees. He stopped in the middle of the facetious remark, and didn't pull them up, either. He merely gazed at his lower self for a moment in that steadfast manner in which a man looks when he sees something he hasn't seen before, and with a painful interest that shows he doesn't care much if he don't see it again. The females blushed and puckered their mouths as if they were starting to whistle and suddenly recollected that they couldn't, and the gentlemen smote wicked smiles. Outside a friend arose with velocity and merely murmuring "Great Cotton" slid out of the house with eclerity and in other man's umbrella."

RINGING FOR THE WATER BOY

A good story is told of a herd in one who was a passenger in a railroad express train, and became thirsty.

"Where is that cre boy with the water can?" he queried of his next neighbor.

"He has gone forward to the baggage car, I suppose," was the reply.

"Well, d'ye 'spose I kin get him back here agin?"

"Certainly," said the other, "you have only to ring for him" and he nodded toward the bell line that ran above their heads.

No sooner said than done. Before any one could prevent it Rustic had seized the line and given it a tremendous tug. The consequences were at once obvious, three shrill whistles were heard, half a dozen brakemen ran to their posts, and the train came to a stand-still with a suddenness that startled half the passengers with astonishment, and caused every man near a window to hoist it and look out to see what was the matter.

In a few minutes the conductor, red and excited came storming into the car to know who pulled the bell rope.

"Here, Mister, this way! I'm the man," shouted the offender, drawing all eyes upon him.

"You!" said the conductor. "What did you do it for?"

"Cos I wanted some water."

"Wanted some water!"

"Certain, I wanted the water-boy, and my partner here in the seat said I'd better ring for him, as we don't see the boy, and so I yanked the rope. Will he be along soon? and, by the way, what in thunder be you stoppin' for?"

The shout of laughter that greeted this honest confession was too much for the conductor, and he had to wait until he got his train under way before he explained the mysteries of the bell rope to his wondering customer.—Boston Commercial Bulletin

FERNS AS ORNAMENTS.—Ferns are much ornament to the house, and we find in an English exchange the following directions for their cultivation in pots. The hole in the bottom of the pot being broken out very much larger than the hander is over it put in three or four pieces of broken pot, then some rich soil and I add in mine just what should be used for cucumbers, no peat no sand, then I put in the fern, and very gently fill the pot with good garden soil, intermixed with a few small bits of soft brick as large as peas. The pot is placed on soil or ashes, perhaps partially plunged perhaps surrounded with broken mm. In any case the soil is always kept quite wet in fact muddy, and the ferns grow. I never saw ferns grow so fine. The whole secret is in keeping them wet and when pots is plunged and thoroughly drained. I examine the under bound fern, pull lightly the drainage from the roots, break off the fibers unless, re-pot in wet soil instead of dry, and it will grow and flourish as it never would with ordinary treatment.

Mr Tennyson, of his publisher receives the handsome sum of $15,000 or $20,000 annually from the composers who make a business of setting the Laureate's poems to music. The charge for permission to set a poem has been fixed at $20 and the applications average two or three a day.

The financial situation as far as local matters are concerned shows but little variation from day to day and any fluctuation in the money market of Portland is usually gradual owing to the fact that there is less inducement to wild speculation immediately in our midst than in most other cities of the same commercial importance. The regular movements which characterizes monetary matters in Oregon is rather a rule except on this coast and while there are no opportunities for such immense fortunes as sometimes enjoy in other localities capitalists have a feeling of security in their moderate gains and a confidence in their investments that do not always accompany the speculations that promise greater results. While Portland does not possess all the facilities for turning millions in a day nor the rush and glare of other places she contains all the elements of a steady prosperity and permanent growth to a greater extent than any city of her size on the coast and more than many of those east of the Rocky mountains.

In regard to the present condition of the home money market it may be said that the general feeling is one of ease and while the demand for loanable funds has undergone a slight revival within the past ten days, the fairly liberal supply before noticed continues and it is safe to add that at no corresponding date for the past three or four years has there been less anxiety in regard to the future on this score than there is at present. No misfortune now appears befalling a very fair if not decidedly prosperous season's business is looked for this fall.

Advices from the East indicate that the pruning knife is still vigorously applied in the treasury department. The new treasurer—Mr. New—takes hold of the affairs of his office with a degree of vigor which promises an effective administration. If he shall serve as long and as well as his immediate predecessor—Mr Spinner—and leave behind him as good a name when he retires the country and he can both be congratulated.

The condition of trade has not varied much from the main characteristics noticed yesterday and the leading commodities present but little that is new. There is some stronger feeling in regard to values under the influence of late advices. The demand for imported goods however continues meager here, almost entirely confined to supplying immediate necessities as there is a very general disposition for the present to carry no more stock than is absolutely necessary.

An exchange says the grain crops of Hungary, France and Russia are all below the average which makes it certain that our surplus will be wanted for shipment. A good export demand for our cereals with diminished importations will produce just what is most needed by this country. When Europe is largely in our debt our affairs are in their best shape gold is kept down in price and other values are regulated. If we could only succeed in paying all current purchases along with the interest due abroad in the products of the country keeping our gold at home as might fairly be at advance. The export demand promises this year to be large.

Wheat Markets Abroad.

Our advices by mail from the Eastern markets are up to the 10th inst. and denote that wheat is attracting an increased attention at Chicago on the 10th the weather though favorable for the growth of hay and straw, did not promise well for heading out so that the wheat was anticipated to be less than the former figures of calculators placed it at the late estimates placing it not much more than 80 per cent. of a recent average crop. It seems also that the farmers' deliveries in England are falling off to a much lower point than was expected the low prices of grain and the high price of straw having stimulated an unusually active consumption of grain by the growers. Hence, buyers in Europe both in England and on the continent have wakened up into new life, and have taken our wheat freely causing a material reduction of our stocks though at much better prices than the most sanguine had dared to hope. Operators are able to calculate somewhat in regard to a British demand because John Bull is slow even at times of greatest excitement. But the French buyers take hold on the spur of the moment and may buy heavily one day and then take not another bushel for a month afterwards. For the reason the report of a continental demand for wheat is never a trustworthy gauge of the future of the market. There is however little reason to doubt that a good deal more of American wheat will be wanted in Great Britain before the proceeds of the harvest there are available and equally good reason to think that our own surplus of old and new wheat after the coming harvest is gathered will prove to be less than enough to break down the market by its weight. The peculiar weather of the present year with the grasshopper scourge have made the differences between a surplus so large as to be unwieldy and a fair working stock. There is no reason to expect that wheat prices will soon again rise to the figures of a few years ago but neither is it probable that quotations will recede far below a dollar in the country on the crop of 1875.

The New York Tribune of the 9th say

Our latest advices from Russian ports are gloomy reports of their crops and it is very evident that the sun plan of Eastern Europe, the country, so to will be much above though timely rains may greatly change the prospects. From the South we have reports of the progress of the harvest, and the result thus far is very variable and collectively not very satisfactory. The crop in Virginia, Maryland and Delaware proves to be better than the east than in the interior but the aggregate is below an average. At the West the winter wheat has been injured somewhat by the recent rains and the harvest delayed. The estimate of the condition of the crop as furnished by the agricultural bureau at Washington, we think is much too high and we feel confident no such result will be attained. Our advices from the Northwest are very important for their crop and should there be favorable weather during July and August a large return seems assured but the season is late and much depends upon the weather this and the coming month. The discrepancy of views at this time in regard to the amount of wheat at the disposal of the world is very apparent to all intelligent millers and merchants there that the surplus of the Northwest was largely overestimated by Western dealers and it is now plain that our estimate published in March of less than 50 000 000 bushels surplus was in excess of the actual supply and it now seems evident that whatever surplus they may have will be marketed ere the 15th of September should we have a good weather.

Home Produce Market.

WHEAT—There have been no transactions of importance to day though one could hear many street rumors of advance on the current price. The market is still under the excitement before noticed and buyers could readily be found were a good lot offered. Holders are much inclined to accept no thing short of $1 05 per cental which is the round dollar a bushel which some a wars claim to be worth to be worth.

FLOUR—The quotations of $5 50 per bbl for standard extras, $5 25 for good country and outside brands and $4 50 for superfine which we have not sight by are considered about right. The demand is quiet transactions have been very considerable and we hear of several lots changing hands at our figure.

OATS—There is a fair demand and receipts are moderate light though some dealers here have very considerable stocks on hand. The recent dry hot weather has injured the prospects for the new crop and prices are firm at 65@70c per bushel.

HAY—We quote car lots of timothy nominally at $14 per ton for common and $15 @16 for choice.

MILL FEED—There is still a tendency to a reduced demand. We quote bran at $16 00@16 50 per ton shorts $20@25 chops middlings etc $27 00@30 oil cake meal $40 with but little in market.

HAY—A full supply in the market quotable at $10@12 a ton for fair to best timothy loose and $11 baled.

POTATOES—The market is fairly steady at 50@$1 a bushel.

ONIONS—There are but few lots in the market quotable at $3 per hundred pounds.

APPLES (DRIED)—There is a fair demand for fair lots either in sacks or kegs, the latter preferred. 5@7c per lb. Exports are increasing.

BACON—Sides are held at our figure quotations 10 @11c hams are in full supply at 13@15c shoulders unchanged from 8@9c, while the market is overstocked with hams and quotations to correspond lots are wanted at 9@10, though they must still be to command the full price.

LARD—Good Oregon made is worth 10@10½ cts or tins and kegs 11@11½ cents.

BUTTER—We quote fresh choice roll at 25@30 cts extra prime for table use 20@25c common to good 15@20c.

CHICKENS—The market is at the usual supply quotations for full grown spring per dozen ranging $3 @$4 50.

EGGS—There was contrary to expectations a slight falling off in receipts today and selling rates advanced again to 17½@20c.

BUTCHER CATTLE—Some very fine fat bullocks have been noticed during the week and the market is supplied with an excellent stock. Sheep and lambs prices are $3 75@4 50 per cwt net or $1 75@2 50 per head.

MUTTON SHEEP—The demand is light at 3½@4c per head.

DRESSED HOGS—There is some inquiry for the local trade at 6@6½c per lb.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla,

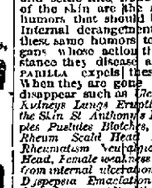
FOR PURIFYING THE BLOOD.



This compound of the vegetable alterative Sarsaparilla Dock, Stillingia Blood Mandrake with the Iodides of Potassium and Iron makes a most effectual cure of a series of complaints which are very prevalent and afflicting. It purifies the blood purges out the lurking humors in the system that undermine health and settle into troublesome disorders. Eruptions of the skin are the appearance on the surface of humors that should be expelled from the blood. Internal derangements are the determination of these same humors to some internal organ, or organs whose action they derange, and whose substances they diseased and destroy. AYER'S SARSAPARILLA expels these humors from the blood. When they are gone the disorders they produce disappear such as Ulcerations of the Liver Stomach, Kidneys Lungs Eruptions and Eruptive Diseases of the Skin St Anthony's Fire Rose or Erysipelas Pain, Pustules Blotches Boils Tumors Tetter and Salt Rheum Scald Head Ringworm Ulcers and Sores, Rheumatism Neuralgia Pain in the Bones Side and Head, Female weakness Sterility Leucorrhœa arising from internal derangement and internal disease, Dropsy, Dyspepsia Emaciation and General Debility. With their departure health returns.
